Nextrom is a global supplier of production technologies for optical fibers and fiber optic cables. They provide solutions for optical glass making, fiber drawing, coating, ribbon making, and cable production, including monocoil and polymer sheathing for telecom and specialty fibers . Maillefer specializes in the sheathing process for loose tube fiber optic cables. Their extrusion technology supports a wide variety of plastic materials to produce high-quality jackets. They offer services to optimize centricity, stability, and material efficiency, with global logistics centers in Switzerland and Finland, and emergency stock facilities in China, India, USA, and Russia . Zeus manufactures polymer-reinforced optical fibers and high-temperature sheathing products. They provide solutions using polymers such as PEEK, PTFE, PFA, ETFE, PVDF, and FEP, designed for mechanical strength, chemical resistance, abrasion resistance, and extreme temperature environments. Zeus works closely with OEMs, sensor manufacturers, and cable producers to develop customized sheathing solutions . Corning offers a comprehensive portfolio of fiber optic cables with durable jackets for indoor and outdoor applications. Their products include LSZH, plenum, riser, aerial, duct, and direct-buried cables. Corning's sheathing solutions ensure stable performance across wide temperature ranges and high fiber density, suitable for terrestrial networks and high-bandwidth applications .

Sheathing Materials and Technologies

Fiber optic cable sheaths are typically made from PVC, polyethylene, polyurethane, or specialized polymers. Advanced extrusion technologies allow precise control over jacket thickness, centricity, and mechanical properties. Some sheaths include armoring or strength members for additional protection against environmental and mechanical stresses .

Applications

- Indoor cables: Flame-retardant jackets for plenum or riser installations.
- Outdoor cables: UV-resistant, water-blocking, and armored sheaths for aerial, duct, or direct-buried deployment.
- Harsh environments: High-temperature, chemical-resistant, and abrasion-resistant polymer sheaths for industrial or sensing applications . These manufacturers provide both standard and customized sheathing solutions, supporting global supply chains and ensuring compatibility with various fiber optic cable production lines.
